BOIL WATER ALERT LIFTED FOR LIGHTNING RIDGE

The boil water alert for the Lightning Ridge Town Water Supply has now been lifted by Walgett Shire Council effective immediately.

This action was taken following advice received from the NSW Health Service following the last two samples taken being free of E-Coli contamination and an investigation carried on 18th May 2022 found no potential source of contamination.

Walgett Shire Council General Manager Michael Urquhart said today, "I am pleased that the boil water alert has now been lifted. However, weekly testing of the Lightning Ridge Water Supply by an independent laboratory in Sydney will continue in the interests of community health".

Council wishes to apologise to the residents of Lightning Ridge for any inconvenience caused by Council having to impose the boil water alert.
