WHERE TO FROM HERE?

Outback New South Wales is made for touring holidays...

With a diverse range of experiences and unique attractions, Outback New South Wales is the perfect place to take a touring holiday. The Walgett Region is a highlight of this incredible touring experience. Whether you choose to make it your final destination or just one stop along the way, there are a number of routes you can take to get here and leave by, the most prominent tours being the Kamilaroi Highway, the Darling River Run and the Great Inland Way.

Kamilaroi Highway

Starting at Willow Tree, south of Tamworth, and running straight out to the Back o’ Bourke, the Kamilaroi Highway offers the most direct route from the Great Dividing Range to the outback. Named after the traditional owners of the land, the sealed highway takes you through the agricultural heartland of New South Wales where everything from wheat and cotton to sunflowers and sorghum is grown, past the rugged mountain ranges of the Nandewars and Mt Kaputar to the sunburnt plains of the outback grazing runs. Along the way, the Kamilaroi’s iconic towns give you every excuse to extend your journey with each one presenting a unique experience of life in Outback New South Wales. At Werris Creek, near Quirindi, you can immerse yourself in the history of the railways that opened up the north west. In Gunnedah, keep an eye out for the urban koalas that regularly roam the streets. In Narrabri, learn how the Australian cotton industry is leading the world by developing more sustainable practices. In Lightning Ridge, you’ll love all the quirky attractions and the equally colourful opal miners. In Brewarrina, step into the Aboriginal Dreamtime at one of the oldest man-made structures on earth, and in Bourke, relive the glory days of the Darling River trade on an old paddle steamer.

Extending a warm welcome, you will find a host of accommodation operators offering historic homestead farm stays, luxury B&Bs, affordably-priced motels, traditional country pubs, rustic bush cabins, well-serviced caravan parks and peaceful caravan spots on the riverbank.

For more information visit: www.kamilaroihighway.com.au

Darling River Run

The Darling River Run is an adventure along Australia’s longest river system. Part of the Murray-Darling basin, the Darling River makes its journey south west across the state to Wentworth on the New South Wales – Victoria border where it joins the mighty Murray. It is fed primarily from the summer rains of southern Queensland and is steeped in both European and indigenous historical, spiritual and living culture.

Starting in Walgett, you will head west following the Barwon River to where the Darling River begins at the confluence of the Culgoa and Barwon Rivers. The easy-to-follow route will then take you 730km down this iconic waterway. Highlights include exploring the natural beauty and rich indigenous culture of some of the most remote National Parks in New South Wales, enjoying the laidback atmosphere of iconic outback towns including Bourke, Louth, Tilpa and Wilcannia and learning about pioneering pastoralists and their lives on the land, before your journey concludes in Wentworth. It is recommended that you take four days to complete this journey in order to make the most of short side trips to see Lightning Ridge’s famous black opal fields, the etched dunes of Mungo National Park and Broken Hill’s historic beauty.

Regardless of whether you do the whole run or just part of it, you will experience some of the best floras, fauna and landscapes, not to mention some of the most unforgettable characters to be found anywhere in Australia.

Great Inland Way

One of Australia’s great drives, the Great Inland Way is a 2,600km journey of a lifetime. This fully-sealed route leads from one natural treasure to another as it weaves its way from Sydney, through the rugged Blue Mountains and on through the rolling hills of crops and vineyards, over the wide-open roads of the outback up through Queensland’s Central Highlands to Cairns, Cooktown and the pristine tropical playground of the Great Barrier Reef.

Once you reach Dubbo, explore the world renowned Taronga Western Plains Zoo, an African safari right in the middle of New South Wales. Turn off the Newell Highway at Gilgandra, home to the Coo-ee Heritage Centre, and follow the Castlereagh River through the picturesque towns of Gulargambone, gateway to the Warrumbungle National Park and Siding Spring Observatory; and Coonamble, where you can participate in a genuine Australian Cattle Drive.

At Walgett you enter Great Artesian Basin country where ancient therapeutic water flows out of the ground at about 40°C at several locations nearby including Lightning Ridge and Burren Junction. It is well worth spending a few days in ‘the Ridge’ – a frontier town with character (and characters) and home of Australia’s national gem – the prized black opal.

Don’t miss a gem of a country pub and the quaint general store at Hebel just across the Queensland border, before heading a few kilometres up the road to Dirranbandi, last stop on the south-west rail line and home to the famed Cubbie Station. Next is St George, but not before you take a small detour to the iconic Nindigully Hotel – a classic friendly outback Queensland pub with giant burgers! Continue north through Queensland, passing iconic destinations like Roma, Injune, Emerald, Charters Towers and finally Cairns and Cooktown.

Camping or accommodated, both are equally catered for. There are luxurious lodgings, secluded hideaways, first-class B&Bs, and the chance to get off the beaten track. With literally something for everyone, you’ll soon appreciate why the Great Inland Way is considered the ‘Australian drive of all drives’!

Outback Touring

The long distances between towns and extreme weather conditions mean that you should be well prepared when touring Outback New South Wales.

- Check the road and weather conditions before you embark on your tour by contacting the local Visitor Information Centres. Drive according to the conditions of the road and beware that they could change suddenly, particularly if you are travelling on unsealed roads.
- Confirm trip distances and plan ahead to ensure you have adequate fuel, water and other essentials.
- A complete first aid kit is essential. It is also highly recommended that you carry spare parts such as tyres, fuses and fan belts and a UHF or satellite telephone as mobile telephone service is not reliable in remote areas.
- Slow down when passing other vehicles or approaching livestock or wildlife and avoid travelling at night when animals are most active.
- Take a break every two hours and share the driving.

Dynamic Aboriginal communities and culture hold a special place in the region.

The Walgett Region extends over land traditionally occupied by the Gamilaraay, Yuwalaaraay, Ngiyambaa, and Wayilwan (Wellwon) people. The Gamilaraay people lived around Waigett and Collarenebri and in the eastern areas of the shire. The Yuwalaaraay lands include the Narran Lakes and the area north around Lightning Ridge, the Ngiyambaa people lived to the west extending across to Brewarrina and Bourke while the Wayilwan were located to the south and south west, along the Macquarie River corridor.

The original landscape provided gunimaa (home) for people, plants and animals with Aboriginal settlement in the area dating back some 40,000 years. Significant occupation sites have been found around the region. Dharrriwa (Narran Lakes Wetland), the Barwon and Namoi Rivers along with the many warrumbul (water course or overflow channel) were all important meeting places for the Aboriginal communities - used for the purposes of fishing, hunting, gathering, recreation and ceremony.

Art & Culture

Aboriginal art and culture in the Walgett Region has a strong connection across all of the various townships and communities. There are many established and emerging artists working across a wide variety of artistic mediums from creating traditional tools, carving emu eggs and traditional dance, to painting, weaving and making contemporary music.

Inspiration for artists in the region is drawn from their ancient ancestors mark making in the ground, tree carvings and traditional stories, that have been passed down through generations of strong local Aboriginal heritage. The region has a rich art and cultural life that can be discovered by visiting the various community cafes, galleries and exhibition spaces.

WALGETT

Dharriwaa Elders Group Cultural Exhibition Centre

The centre is a keeping place, cultural education hub and meeting place for Aboriginal Elders. It houses an extensive collection as a result of Elders’ community development work maintaining Aboriginal cultural values of Walgett and surrounding lands and waters.

The centre displays both permanent and temporary exhibitions and local Aboriginal arts & crafts for sale including paintings, carved emu eggs, wooden items and jewellery. ‘Memories of Living Outside Walgett’ is a permanent exhibition at the centre and documents the memories of Elders who lived in the tin camps of the Walgett Aboriginal Station, Namo Riverbank and Montekilla Bend between the 1920’s and 1970’s. ‘Tough but happy times’ is another permanent exhibition produced by the group - located at the Walgett Aboriginal Medical Service’s Euragai Goondi - it remembers Walgett’s Camping Ground community. The centre and exhibitions are open: Mon-Fri 10am-1pm. 47 Fox Street, Walgett | www.dharriwaaeldersgroup.org.au

Norman ‘Tracker’ Walford Way

Located along the southern foreshore of the Namo River, this 1.5km walk is in memory of Norman Walford who was employed as an Aboriginal tracker from 1948 to 1973. Skilled in bush craft, Aboriginal trackers were an integral part of the NSW Police Force employed to track criminals, recover lost and stolen stock and search for people lost in the bush. The walk along the riverbank is sealed and suitable for both pedestrians and cyclists, passing bird attracting lagoons, scar trees and a mural commemorating Tracker Walford. Ask at the Visitor Information Centre for more information.

WALGETT

Walking Tracks

The Dharriwaa Elders Group offer a unique introduction to the wonders of Baayzaami’s creation and Walgett’s rich heritage with a series of 16 interpretive signs erected along the Trakker Walford Walkway and another walking track that follows the Namo River, through historically significant and environmentally interesting locations. The signs identify local native vegetation, birds and animals, fish and reptiles, the Namo River itself and Walgett’s artesian waters. Other information is also provided about Walgett Aboriginal entertainers, Aboriginal servicemen and women, Aboriginal police trackers, the Freedom Ride and the Aboriginal river communities of Namo, Montekilla Bend and the old Brewery. For more information and maps visit: 47 Fox Street, Walgett | www.dharriwaaeldersgroup.org.au

WALGETT

Café 64 Art Gallery

Located in the Walgett town centre – take a break, get a bite to eat and take in the current exhibition of locally produced Aboriginal art for sale. 64 Wee Waa Street, Walgett

LIGHTNING RIDGE

Bush Tucker & Medicine Garden

Stretch your legs after a long drive at the IBC Gem Gardens, conveniently located next door to the Lightning Ridge Visitor Information Centre. The cultural mural and bush tucker and bush medicine section of the garden highlights how the local Yuwalaray people lived in the area before European settlement.

Harran Lakes Nature Reserve

This remote site is both environmentally and culturally significant. It is an internationally recognised wetland due to its rarity and significance for waterbirds such as the straw-necked ibis, spoonbills and cormorants and their breeding. It is also an important drought refuge for waterbirds and supports threatened species such as the brolga, magpie goose and Australian Bittern. It also provides an important habitat for a variety of plants, native fish, mammals, amphibians and reptiles. Dharriwaa (Harran Lakes) has a creation story and has always been a meeting place for many Aboriginal Nations. Due to its remoteness and sensitivity the reserve is only open to the public on special tour days run by the Harran Lakes Co-Management Committee. Enquire at the Walgett Visitor Information Centre.

COLLARENEBRI

Colymgonge Carved Trees

For thousands of years Aboriginal communities marked important ceremonial sites by carving expressive and ornate designs into the trunks of trees. In the Gamilaraay area these elaborate cultural expressions served as powerful symbols for boys being ushered into manhood at elaborate ceremonies called Bora. Colymgonge in north-west New South Wales, is the site of around 60 surviving carved trees – the greatest cluster remaining in the state. The carved trees were removed from their original site on Banaway Bora Ground in the early 1940’s – a significant site used for ceremonial occasions. They are now housed in a shelter at the turn off to Colymgonge Station.

COLLARENEBRI

Rock Pool

Sitting on the weir at Collarenebri, the rocks had been arranged to help Aboriginal people catch fish.

Aboriginal Cemetery

Visit the glass graves at the Aboriginal Cemetery on the edge of town. The framed plots are adorned with colourful shattered glass placed around the graves in characteristic designs as a celebration of love and death that is unique to the local Aboriginal culture.

Devils Hole

At this particular site on the river, known as Devils Hole, Gamilaraay Elders have told of creation stories linking the location to the Aboriginal fish traps downstream at Brewarrina.

Bundabreene Falls

A significant site of volcanic rock and rock scarring where Aboriginal people sharpened their tools. It holds sacred memories, traditions and stories of traditional Aboriginal people.

‘Arrange a tour…’

An arranged tour with a local guide or an Elder of the Collarenebri Aboriginal community who knows the history of these remarkable sites, will share a unique cultural experience and tell stories of how precious they are to the Aboriginal people.

Phone the Walgett Visitor Information Centre on 02 6828 6139 for up to date information on accessing these sites.
Great Outdoors

From the fertile black soil plains that support farming and grazing to the rocky red ironstone ridges where Australia's national gemstone, the opal, can be found, the landscapes of the Walgett Region epitomise the legendary Australian outback and with that there are many adventures to be had.

The sheer size of our clear skies has to be seen to be believed. Rise with the sun to enjoy the calm, peaceful pastels of dawn before you get the blood pumping with a hike along the banks of one of our rivers amid the stately eucalypts. Later in the day, relax in a hot artesian bath and savour the vibrant crimsons and golds of our glorious sunsets.

On the water, the Region offers many adventure-packed opportunities, from seasonal kayaking tours in the Macquarie Marshes, water skiing at Collarenebri and for the kids - the Water Theme Park and Olympic Diving Pool in Lightning Ridge.

Underground, take a tour down an opal mine and see opal at its source or fossick for your very own fortune in the piles of mullock on the surface. Or in the mud, why not drive a buggy in the Colly Mud Trials held in March each year in Collarenebri.

When it comes to exploring the outback you will not come across anything quite like the Lightning Ridge Car Door Tours. Coloured car doors instead of street signs, strung up in trees and leaning against old posts, direct you down winding dirt roads past miners' shanties and camps and places like Lunatic Hill.

Artesian Springs

The artesian springs or “bore baths”, as the locals like to call them, are outback Australia’s unique version of hot springs. Walgett, Lightning Ridge and Burren Junction are among a string of towns across western New South Wales where you can enjoy the naturally hot waters of the Great Artesian Basin in public bore baths.

Approximately 2 million years old, the Great Artesian Basin is an underground reservoir of fresh water that stretches over a fifth of the entire continent, making it the largest and deepest in the world. It is the only reliable source of fresh water in many arid and semi-arid regions of Queensland, the Northern Territory, South Australia and New South Wales. The natural pressure created by geothermal heat forces the water up to ground level from over a kilometre below the earth's surface without pumping.

While water from the Great Artesian Basin is used domestically throughout the region and for livestock purposes, people who enjoy its therapeutic qualities also frequent the bore baths. The mineral rich water, which contains sodium, magnesium, calcium, iron and silica, reputedly relieves aching muscles, eases joint pain and rejuvenates the skin. It is a soothing and revitalizing experience that is guaranteed to engender a state of deep relaxation – the perfect way to end a long day of outback touring and adventure.
If you happen to visit during the warmer summer months, you might be lucky enough to witness one of Lightning Ridge’s spectacular electrical storms that light up the inky night sky as if it were day, but be warned – the extreme summer temperatures are not for the faint hearted!

Outback Pubs

The outback pub is an Australian icon and there’s no shortage of them in the Walgett Region. From the simple, honest charm of pubs like the Carinda Hotel, where David Bowie filmed his ‘Let’s Dance’ film clip or the Rowena Village Inn and the Junction City Hotel where you might find cattle greeting you at the door!

The bush pubs of the opal fields – the Glengarry Hilton, the Club in the Scrub and Sheepyard Inn – are a must stop when visiting the region. All are truly unique, a little odd, but friendly and a whole lot of fun! Spend a night out singing karaoke with the colourful locals or plan your visit around Anzac Day at the Sheepyard Inn. You are sure to leave with some great stories from your visit.

For the not-so-outback, head to the air-conditioned comfort of the Walgett District Sporting Club and the Lightning Ridge Bowling Club and unwind over an ice cold beer and a bistro meal. There’s a place to suit everyone.
Camping & Caravaning
For the true outback experience, nothing beats the sense of freedom and adventure of camping out or stopping overnight at one of the region’s free road side camping spots.
After a long day driving or exploring sit back and take in the breathtaking sunsets, star gaze over a camp dinner and wake to clear open skies.

There are primitive free camping grounds in Walgett at Alex Travallion Park, along the river bank in Collarenebri and at the bore baths in Burren Junction, which are all RV friendly providing amenities such as toilets, barbecues and dump points. The Walgett Showground offers powered sites at a small fee – enquire at the Visitor Information Centre. Lightning Ridge has a number of centrally located camping and caravan parks with modern facilities and spacious drive-through campsites.

After a long day driving or exploring the region, sit back and take in the breathtaking sunsets, star gaze over a camp dinner and wake to clear open skies.

Fishing
Throw a line in and try your luck at catching a yellow Belly, Golden Perch, Freshwater Catfish, Bony Bream or the sought after Murray Cod. If nothing else is biting, you will almost certainly catch a European Carp!

There are plenty of fishing spots along the regions Barwon and Namoi Rivers and Collarenebri itself is regarded as one of Australia’s best inland fishing locations. If you’re camping along the river bank what could be more perfect than catching some yabbles for a camp dinner!

You can pick up a brochure from one of the Visitor Information Centres or ask a local about the fishing hot spots. Fishing licenses, equipment and further information about where to drop a line can be obtained from Supersave in Lightning Ridge or Hunt Camp Fish in Walgett.

The Burren Junction Carp Muster is held in March each year and in August the Walgett Bulldust to Bitumen Festival also plays host to a fishing competition as part of its week long event schedule.

Horse Racing
Venture out to the quaint town of Come-By-Chance for the picnic races or back a winner at the Collarenebri Races, both held during September each year. There are also race days in Walgett, in June and Carinda in July.

Or for something a little different, join the colourful crowd who flock to the Lightning Ridge Horse Races during the Easter Festival – where all dress attire goes! The finest suits and best dressed ladies are wonderfully mixed with thongs and shorts. On a visit to the opal fields you might just stumble across a very competitive day of yabbie racing!
Wildlife

Wildlife such as kangaroos, wallabies and emus frequent the plains, while egrets, pelicans and ducks are among the many species of bird that can be spotted around the regions rivers and wetlands. Indeed, with recorded sightings of over 160 species of birds, the Walgett Region is a veritable bird-watchers paradise! The gregarious Red-tailed Black Cockatoo can often be seen around Walgett, while the Major Mitchell is frequently observed in the heavily wooded ridges in the district.

The nearby Macquarie Marshes, which can be accessed via Carinda, is one of the largest semi-permanent wetlands in inland Australia. It is recognized as a major colonial waterbird nesting site with recorded sightings of well over 20 species of birds. A wildlife observatory platform can be accessed via the Gibson Way at Tarrigal Creek with the best visiting times being early morning or late afternoon for maximum wildlife viewing.

Visit the Macquarie Marshes Nature Reserve on the October long weekend Discovery Tour run by The National Parks and Wildlife Service. Alternatively, find out about guided kayaking and walking tours by Marsh Meanders. For up to date seasonal information contact the Walgett Visitor Information Centre.

With an abundance of wildlife, the Walgett Region is not only a bird watchers paradise but will keep you very entertained - spotting emus and kangaroos on your travels...
fascinating, friendly & a whole lot of fun!

See & do
- Sunset at Nettleton’s First Shaft
- Attend one of the festivals
- Cool off at the Water Theme Park
- Visit an art gallery
- Fossick for black opal

Speaking, Fossicking, Noodling
Call it whatever you like, it all means looking for opal and as the locals will tell you, there are few things more exciting than the first glimpse of colour that appears as you scratch through the seemingly endless piles of white opal dirt. It is worth remembering though that you can’t walk up to any pile of mullock and start fossicking – if the area is subject to registered claim, you need to get the claimholder’s permission. If you are keen to try your luck you can head to the free fossicking heap at the Lightning Ridge Visitor Information Centre or ask inside for other locations.

Cool off and relax
Favourites of many who visit Lightning Ridge are the aquatic attractions! The Olympic Diving Pool & Water Theme Park are an oasis in the middle of the outback and hours of fun with wave pools, beach volleyball courts and slides. For relaxation after a long day of touring visit the Artesian Bore Baths.

Don’t miss...
ARTober in Lightning Ridge - an annual celebration of the rich art community. Collect an event guide & map from the Lightning Ridge Visitor Information Centre and take yourself on a tour of the temporary exhibition spaces that pop up all over town and on the opal fields exhibiting the exciting work of local artists & creatives.
Artists & Galleries
The unique beauty of the landscape at Lightning Ridge is inspiration for a host of local artists. From photography, paintings, sculpture and ceramics to Aboriginal art and carvings - staff at the Visitor Information Centre will be only too happy to point you in the direction of local artists, artisans and creatives, and the galleries and spaces where their collections are on display.

The Gallery, 2834 Studios and A Quiet Man's Place are all local galleries with free admission and throughout the year the Ridge ArtSpace hosts exhibitions of both local and visiting artists.

Visit the John Murray Art Gallery on Opal Street for a whimsical, photo-realistic perspective on life in the outback.

The rest area 10km out of town on the Castlereagh Highway is also well worth a stop. Here you will find Stanley the Emu - the 18 metre high creation of John Murray, built in collaboration with the local community. The sculpture was created from donated scrap metal including three volkswagen bodies and a pair of satellite dishes. It is quite the welcome to town!

Creative Attractions
The rugged look of the town belies a surprisingly diverse range of quirky and creative attractions. Amigos' Castle is a huge gothic style castle that a local man has been single-handedly building since he began to tire from opal mining in 1985.

Chambers of the Black Hand, is an underground, interactive work of art. Ron Canlin has completed over 500 carvings to date using tools ranging from a jackhammer and mining picks to cutlery from his kitchen!

When it comes to Australian bush architecture the Bottle House is an intriguing example - originally a miner's camp it now houses an astonishing collection of artifacts. The Can House built in the 1970s and located near Nettletons First Shaft Lookout is also a must visit. Short of building materials, early miners built their shelters out of whatever they could get their hands on - in this case, old beer cans! Here you will also experience a very subtle surprise - the 6 Mile Circle - a maze perfectly measured out on the ground marked with rocks.

Meet the only black opal mining cactus farmers in the world at Bevan's Cactus nursery for the largest display of old and rare cactus in the southern hemisphere.

Car Door Tours
The Car Door Tour is Lightning Ridge's version of the self-drive tour. There are four different tours and each one is marked by colour-coded and numbered doors. You'll find the car doors strung up in trees or leaning in easily visible places, directing you down winding dirt roads and giving you a taste of what it's like to live and work on the opal fields.

Organised tours are a great way to get an overview of town, but a Car Door Tour will give you an impression of the Ridge's quirkiness. Pick up a copy of the Car Door Tours map at the Lightning Ridge Visitor Information Centre and make sure you watch out for wildlife while you're driving around!
Easter Festival

Held annually over the Easter long weekend, the Easter Festival showcases all that Lightning Ridge has to offer and more. As well as discovering the mystery of the magnificent black opal, enjoying local tours, attractions, galleries and shops that are open all year round, be entertained by street buskers, novelty events, market stalls and a carnival, as well as some special events:

- The Big Dig sees contestants madly fossick in piles of opal dirt to locate over $10,000 worth of opal.
- The Little Dig for kids with over $3,000 worth of prizes.

Step back in time...

Explore the Historical Society Miners Hut built in 1932 by Albert Spencer when he struck opal. Walk through the front door onto dirt floors then follow the cat’s footprints in concrete into the kitchen. The bark dividing walls and kerosene tin chimney are typical of early Ridge architecture. It is bulging with memorabilia, local history displays, books and handcrafts for sale.

Behind the miners hut you will find Heritage Cottage, a relocated and refurbished 1915 nurses cottage - a tribute to all bush nurses. Entry is by donation.

Cooper’s Cottage is also a great historical stop - authentically illustrating the living conditions of the mining pioneer. Built in 1916 it was the home of Bert Cooper, one of the areas earliest residents.

Australia is the world’s main producer of precious opal, one of the most spectacular of gemstones. Opal is found at several locations around the margins of Australia’s Great Artesian Basin, with Australian opal regarded as the world’s finest. Not surprisingly, opal is celebrated as Australia’s National Gemstone.

The opal fields of Lightning Ridge, Grawin, Glengarry and Sheppyard have become particularly famous as the largest known deposits of black opal in the world. Black opal is the rarest and most valuable type of opal, with a dark body tone that increases the vibrancy of the colours of the stone.

In the Lightning Ridge area, opal is usually mined by underground methods. A vertical shaft of a metre in diameter is sunk, generally to between 5 and 25 metres deep, to intersect levels hoped to contain opal. The miner then digs horizontal tunnels or drives into the opal level. Shafts were once sunk by hand using picks, shovels and other tools; today they are made using a mechanical Calweld drill. Since the late 1980s, many opal miners have further increased their efficiency by using an auger drill to prospect for areas likely to produce opal, before deciding where to sink a shaft. Once the opal bearing potential of an area has been established, the ‘opal dirt’ (clay and/or sandstone thought to contain opal) is removed using a jackhammer or hydraulic digging machine, then taken above ground using either an automatic hoist or a blower. The blower is a machine that sucks opal dust from the mine face, through a pipe along the drive, then up the shaft. The opal dirt is then usually tumbled or ‘washed’ in water for several hours in a modified cement mixer known as an agitator. The resulting hard tailings are sorted with keen eyes searching for a hint of colour.

Opal mining at Lightning Ridge is still the domain of the individual miner or small partnerships. It involves hard work, but despite this, people continue to be attracted to Lightning Ridge from all over the world by the opportunity to search for treasure, be master of their own destiny and – just maybe – strike it rich!

For more insight into opal mining, a number of tours in Lightning Ridge offer educational underground experiences, including excellent bus tours and the Walk-in Mine, Chambers of the Black Hand and the Big Opal.

Did you know that Lightning Ridge is the richest dinosaur site in NSW? What’s more, the fossils are opalised – bones and shells, teeth and pinecones transformed into opal. The opalised fossils of the Waigiet Region are among the most rare and precious of Australia’s national treasures.

110 million years ago, Lightning Ridge was a forested floodplain near an inland sea. It was home to dinosaurs, plesiosaurs and pterosaurs, fish, turtles and crocodiles, birds and mammals, yabbies and snails. Their remains sank into fine mud in ancient streams and billabongs, and after millions of years, were transformed into opal.

You can see rare opalised fossils at the Australian Opal Centre in Lightning Ridge. This incredible national collection has been assembled and donated to the nation by the opal miners and residents of the Australian opal fields.

Located approximately 70 kilometres west of Lightning Ridge, Grawin, Glengarry and Sheepyards offer an unrivalled opportunity to see how life is lived on a frontier-style opal field. No visit to the Lightning Ridge and Walgett Region would be complete without a visit to these outlying opal mining fields.

Opal was first discovered at Glengarry in 1905, but it is the discovery of opal at Hammond Hill that saw the establishment of Grawin in 1908. Further discoveries at Richards Hill in 1920 bolstered the unofficial village. Ever since the first discovery of opal in the area, people seeking their fortune have come and gone in waves with each new strike, which makes for a community of colourful characters.

Enjoy getting to know the men and women who live on the final frontier of high hopes, tall tales and long beards at one of the three bush pubs located on the opal fields. The Sheepyard Inn, the Club in the Scrub and the Glengarry Hilton all offer a unique outback experience that will keep you intrigued for hours.

When driven at the right speed they are suitable for caravans and other large vehicles. It is worth remembering though, that this is a restricted mining area - so best to stick to the main areas.

Amongst the shanties, old caravans and piles of mullock you will find the beautiful Sheepyard and Community War Memorial, built by miners - many of which were Vietnam Vets. On Anzac day, hundreds of war veterans, locals and visitors flock to the Sheepyard for the moving Anzac Day service.

Located 70 kilometres from Walgett on the Barwon River, Collarenebri is regarded as one of Australia’s best inland fishing locations. Ask a local about the fishing hot spots or call in at the Walgett Visitor Information Centre for a fishing brochure.

Head down to the riverbank with a picnic, throw a line in under the shade of an ancient coolibah tree and await the fish biting. If you don’t catch a Golden Perch, Bony Bream, Yellow Belly or mighty Murray Cod, you will almost certainly catch a European Carp!

The Barwon River at Collarenebri is renowned for its plentiful water supply and is a sanctuary for other forms of recreation during the long hot summers. A boat ramp located near the Rocky Ford Bridge, provides access for water skiing and jet skis. Set up camp in one of the many secluded and free camping sites along the river and settle in for a relaxing evening under the stars.

Another stop for visitors should be the glass graves at the Aboriginal Cemetery on the edge of town. The framed plots are adorned with colourful shattered glass that is placed around the graves in characteristic designs in a celebration of love and death - unique to the local Aboriginal culture.

Arrange a tour with a local guide or Elder who will share their extensive knowledge of the history and cultural significance of the cemetery, along with other sites such as Devils Hole, the Rock Pools and Bundabreena Falls. WALGETT REGION

villages and townships

CUMBORAH

To the northwest of Walgett surrounded by mulga and cypress scrubland, lies Cumborah — once a thriving epicentre for local graziers, their families and employees. Since it was proclaimed in 1892, services such as a police station, post office and school have come and gone. Today a small community of residents remains, enjoying a quiet lifestyle with a warm sense of community.

The road passing through the village is the gateway to the opal fields of Grawin, Gligarry and Sheepyards.

ROWENA

North east of Walgett on the wide open plains, lies Rowena, a small village and meeting place for the surrounding agricultural communities. Farming in this area consists of both dryland and irrigated cropping as well as the grazing of cattle and sheep.

This charming village was originally a prominent railway siding with a wheat stack and a hotel, which like many pubs burnt down. Today a thriving small school and pub, general store and post office (all rolled into one) services the community.

In October the school hosts a fantastic Oktoberfest event — it’s not to be missed and a favourite among the locals. Cracker Night also draws a huge crowd of over 1,000 people from the region and is guaranteed fun for the whole family.

CARINDA

Located 85 kilometres south of Walgett, Carinda is a historical pioneering village on the Marthaugy Creek. It was settled in the mid-1800s when the area’s excellent potential for grazing stock was recognised. One of these was Thomas McNamara who acquired 16,000 acres of land, which became known as Carinda Station. He built a dwelling on the nearby Marthaugy Creek where he ran a hotel and store around which the small village grew. In 1908 the Carinda Bore was sunk enabling people to move away from the Creek and second settlement, known then as Top End, sprang up where Carinda is situated today.

Among the attractions of present day Carinda are a 12-hole golf course and the local hotel, which was the focal point of the video clip filmed in the town for David Bowie’s 1983 single, “Let’s Dance.” It is still renowned as a place to enjoy the friendly company of the local people while relaxing with a cold beer and pub meal.

Carinda hosts a race meeting every July and it is fast becoming a major social event in Western NSW. Caravan and Camping facilities are available at the Race Track and nearby sports ground.

The nearby Cuddie Springs is an important archaeological and paleontological site located between the Marra Creek and the Macquarie River. It is a shallow basin in the middle of an ancient lake that irregularly held water where animal bones and stone artifacts accumulated. In 1876, the Yeomans family, who owned the property, discovered the bones of some large prehistoric animals during the construction of a well.

The site has since been the subject of several scientific excavations, including most recently one led by Dr Judith Field whose research uncovered evidence of the coexistence of humans and large prehistoric animals known as megafauna 30,000 years ago. It is the only site in Australia to provide such evidence of this.

MACQUARIE MARSHES

Carinda is the gateway to the Macquarie Marshes Nature Reserve — located along the lower Macquarie River. The Macquarie Marshes are one of the largest remaining semi-permanent wetlands in south eastern Australia. They extend over an area of almost 20,000 hectares; however the reserve itself covers only a small part of the marsh area. The rest is private agricultural holdings, utilized for the grazing of cattle, sheep and cropping. The reserve is managed by the NSW National Parks & Wildlife Service and contains a wide range of vegetation types primarily determined by the frequency and duration of flooding. They are also recognised as one of the major colonial water bird nesting areas in Australia.

The best way to experience this spectacular wetland is on the Discovery Weekend run every October long weekend or by touring with Marsh Meanders, a privately owned enterprise that offers a range of kayaking (seasonal) and walking tours for all age groups. For further information, contact: Carolyn Fisher Ph: 02 6824 2972 or Narelle Sinclair Ph: 02 6824 2070. Or visit the Wildlife Observation Platform constructed by the NSW National Parks and Wildlife Service on the Gibson Way at Terrigal Creek. BURREN JUNCTION

Heading directly east from Walgett the plains stretch endlessly to the horizon. Take the time to imagine the local Kamilaroi Aboriginal people roaming the area happily for some 40,000 years - catching yabbies and mussels in the creeks and hunting the native animals for their food.

92km from Walgett you will stumble upon Burren Junction - one of the real delights of driving the Kamilaroi Highway. Just on the other side of town you will find a side road (RV friendly) leading to the famous bore baths which are usually surrounded by a clutch of caravans. Pull up under a tree, put your swimmers on and lower yourself into the healing thermal waters pumped from the Great Artesian Basin for a true aussie outback spa experience.

The area east of Burren Junction was first settled by Europeans in the 1830's, when they pushed further and further west looking for suitable grazing country for their stock - and boy did they find it! The soil in the Burren Junction area is as fertile as would be found anywhere in Australia and eventually the familiar sight of sheep and cattle grazing was joined by fields of wheat. Burren Junction grew when the railway forged out west and in its hey day, the township bustled with a daily goods and passenger train from Sydney as well as a court house, hospital, bank, bakery, butcher, several stock and station agents and a school of 150 kids.

Today, only the streets of Burren Junction (named after British war victories) and very few old buildings remain. Agricultural industries of wheat, sheep and cattle now sustain the surrounding community and with the expansion of the cotton industry, much of the country is dedicated to the production of cotton. The welcoming community spirit is still well and truly alive. Drop into The Junction City Hotel which draws a great crowd - with regular entertainment, cabin accommodation and hearty meals, you may even be greeted at the door by some inquisitive cattle. Or plan a visit around one of the local events. The Burren Junction Carp Muster hosted by the fishing club in March, is great fun for the whole family. The Burren Junction Gyro-keeper Muster is held in June and the Burren Junction Campdraft in September.

One of the real delights of driving the Kamilaroi Highway - where the welcoming community spirit is still well and truly alive.

CRYON

Cryon is a small hamlet in the open plains, 52km east of Walgett. When the railway reached the settlement in 1905 it was a thriving hub and for quite some years, was the loading point for cattle from south west Queensland that were being readme to the Sydney market. Located on the Kamilaroi Highway between Walgett and Burren Junction, you will pass thru this quiet locality on your way to larger centres and see just a few buildings and the wheat silos that remain here today, along with fields of wheat and grazing stock.

COME BY CHANCE

The quaint yet unusually named village of Come-By-Chance, located on the Baradine Creek, was given its name after a property purchased in the name of William Colless in 1862 - reflecting his surprise that he was able to purchase a sheep station in the district.

The Colless family came to own the post office, hotel, police station, blacksmith shop, cemetery and other building blocks in what was reputedly the only privately owned village in the Southern Hemisphere. Come by Chance has always been a central meeting place for surrounding station owners. Today, the community hall / general store provides the focus for entertainment. You will find it open from 10am-8pm on weekdays (with the exception of Tuesday) and 11am-6pm on weekends. This quiet village comes to life for one particular weekend every September, when the annual Picnic Races are held. Crowds flock to the trackside to cheer home a winner in the Come By Chance Picnic Cup (1,400m). Since the inaugural race day was held in 1947, the races have become an institution, attracting thousands of people from far and wide.
